

An aerial photograph of a road intersection in a forested area. A road runs from the bottom left towards the top right. At a junction, it splits into two paths. The path continuing towards the top right is highlighted with a thick red border. The path branching off to the right is also highlighted with a thick red border. The surrounding area is covered in dense green trees. A dirt path runs diagonally across the upper left portion of the image. A small body of water is visible in the bottom right corner.
